MEDICUS GOLF ANNOUNCES RELEASE OF THE MAXIMUS HITTABLE WEIGHTED TRAINER

Medicus Golf announced its new Maximus Swing Trainer line. The Maximus is a unique line of patented soft-weighted hittable trainers, rapidly gaining attention from golfers and teachers alike. The Maximus helps builds strength and speed along with working on swing plane, tempo, timing, and teaching a proper wrist cock release, leading to improved distance. Medicus acquired the Maximus Swing Trainer line from Andersen Golf, the innovator of hittable weighted trainers with real golf club feel.

“The Medicus has worked great in taking golfers to the next level, but we always knew there was that one perfect compliment out there, the one item that would combine with the Medicus, offering a complete experience for the golfer to become the best they can be. And we found it with the Maximus!” said Bob Koch, inventor and founder of Medicus.

“We’re very excited about this”, said Tom Andersen, inventor of the Maximus and 18-year NASA Scientist. “The Medicus hinged clubs are the most recognized golf swing trainers in the world. We’re confident the Maximus has found the right home, and now the golfing world can discover the benefits of the Maximus Hittable Weighted Swing Trainer as well!”

Medicus Golf is the creator of such world-renowned best-selling training aids as the Medicus Hinged Club and the Medicus Dual-Hinge Driver. Their patented dual-hinge is unique in that it only breaks when the golf swing is off tempo or off plane, providing instant feedback and support as a golf training aid. Medicus is dedicated to assisting golfers to improve their total golf game by offering tools for every part of personal development in golf from the mechanical and physical to the mental and nutritional.
